Introduction

What a great pleasure to return to Germany with our UCI Cyclo-Cross World Cup after 13 years. In 2003, St. Wendel hosted a round of the discipline's leading series before organising our UCI World Championships in 2005 and 2011. We now move further north, to Zeven, for the fifth of nine rounds of the 2016-2017 Telenet UCI Cyclo-cross World Cup.

The Telenet UCI Cyclo-Cross World Cup spans five months and attracts the very best specialists in the world. These athletes battle each other throughout the season in a bid to gain the leader's jersey and ultimately take the overall UCI World Cup title.

Germany has a strong history in cyclo-cross and boasts several former UCI World Champions, not least Klaus-Peter Thaler in 1985 and 1987, Mike Kluge in 1992 and the incredible Hanka Kupfernagel who won no fewer than four world titles between 2001 and 2008. More recently, Germany saw Philip Walsleben take second place overall in the 2013-2014 UCI Cyclo-Cross World Cup.

This year the German athletes will have the chance to compete on home soil, and I know that the organisers in Zeven have put in a tremendous amount of work to ensure the athletes will be racing in the best possible conditions. I would like to take this opportunity to thank Kurt Vernimmen, Marc Janssens and their team for undertaking the organisation of this important, top-level event. They have the support of the Bund Deutscher Radfahrer and its President Rudolph Scharping as well as different sponsors, partners and a great number of volunteers, all of whom have an important part to play in staging this event. My thanks go to you all.

The Telenet UCI Cyclo-Cross World Cup reaches its mid-way point in Zeven and the competition will be hard-fought. I wish the very best of luck to all the athletes taking part.

Brian Cookson
UCI President
